This text explores the multidisciplinary context of African Indigenous Knowledge Systems from scholars and scholar activists committed to the interrogation, production, articulation, dissemination and general development of endogenous and indigenous modes of intellectual activity and praxis. The work reinforces the demand for the decolonization of the academy and makes the case for a paradigmatic shift in content, subject matter and curriculum in institutions in Africa and elsewhere – with a view to challenging and rejecting disinformation and intellectual servitude. Indigenous intellectual discourses related to diverse disciplines take center stage in this volume with a focus on education, mathematics, medicine, chemistry and engineering in their historical and contemporary context.

Violet Oranges in Twilight is a gripping memoir. It is an intersect narrative of fiction and non-fiction; a fun-packed memoir of the 1980's primary and secondary school days of a middle-class Nigerian girl and her friends. It is a subtle tale of the challenges encountered by the students; salient issues in teaching and learning, reflection on experience as well as the hidden curricula that facilitated the development of the pupils and students during their initial formative years. Through stories of school and family events, the challenges of school and family relationships, career choices, socialization and aspirations were pertinently explored. The style of writing is simple and yet intense with the language that is formal and intermittently laced with humour, presenting majorly the perspective of the learners that are within an educational system that focuses rather on the facilitators of learning.
